THE DAILY NEWS
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1893.

Some wise man once said that he never wanted a holiday so much as the day after he had had a holiday. There are doubtless countless thousands to-day who echo his wish.

The German emperor has written to Alfonso of Spain concerning the latter's birthday in which he speaks of the latter's "consecration of his life to his country's service with such unexampled self-sacrifice." Really we do not know of a parallel to such gush as this—except the rhapsodies of New York dramatic critics over Irving.

The fierce fire in New York City, of which the Windsor theater was the center, suggests the thought that it is a wonder that any city has never had a "Chicago" fire. It is packed block to block closer than any city in the country, and almost entirely with combustible structures, that is buildings not fire proof.
Even in the late flats which tower heavenward with their hundreds of sleeping persons every night, it is only the more expensive ones that are fire-proof. The ability with which they handle a fire in New York seems almost a surety against any configuration; but the building of that city does well to turn itself toward the erection of fireproof structures, as it is doing in recent years.

The New York estimate of the marriage of a Miss Donahue, daughter of one Peter Donahue, a California millionaire, and a German Baron Von Schroeder, is that it is worth telegraphing all over the continent.
All the details of the course of true love, which "never did run smooth," are set out, as well as a minute description of the wedding, the guests and all the belongings. New York ought to get it through its title-worshipping heart that America at large despises rank and caste, and with the English poet sings "True hearts are more than coronets, and simple faiths than gentle blood." It is said that a party of American artists of the New York strain, assembled at Delmonico's and drank the toast "God save the queen," and then brayed "Rule Britannia." It is to them and such as them that New York should tell the story of the swap of a title for money.

A CALCULATION of the amount that would be distributed to each state and territory from the liquor revenue, under the Blaine scheme of disposing of the revenue from tobacco and whisky, shows that Illinois, which produces more liquor than any other state, would receive less from it than New York, Pennsylvania or Ohio. No state will stand that. To make her industries, whatever their character, pay tribute to states that have no connection with them is a little too much for state pride or independence. Setting aside the straining or fracture of the constitution, in making the national government levy taxes for state use, the gross unfairness of levying on one state's products to benefit another will be sure to defeat the project. The logical end of the scheme is that the national government can levy taxes on corn as well as the liquid product of corn, on timber as well as tobacco, and may, in fact, tax anything it pleases and apply it in such sums of its pleasure, to state use. What becomes of a state government then?

HENRY WATSON telegraphs to the Courier-Journal from New York, thus:

The backers of Mr. Randall have fled once more to the stupor talk about the old ticket, and are at this moment urging Mr. Tilden into the contest. I can say positively, and of my own knowledge, that Mr. Tilden is as irreconcilably opposed to the old ticket as he was last summer. He would not go to Washington to take the oath of office, far less accept the nomination.

In that last sentence Mr. Watson "gives himself away," to talk the slang of the street. There isn't one of the fifty million who will read that sentence who won't laugh at its utter absurdity. The idea of a man so averse to being president of the United States, that nominated and elected, he would refuse to take the oath of office! Perhaps Mr. Watson only spoke in a Pickwickian sense. If so, he alludes himself with Tilden's refusal, or the refusal of his friends for him of the presidency.

Can it be that Mr. Watson has joined the old ticket of bloons, and appears with Mr. Dana, a violent disclaimer until the proper time?
Unhappy thought!

ARCHDEACON DENISON writes to the London Post that "not many years ago we used to get Latin and now and then Greek correctly reprinted in the public papers. It is a very rare thing now." It ought to be rarer. As Dr. Johnson said of a difficult passage of music, "it ought to be impossible." Latin and Greek have no business in a report meant for general reading. It is published to be read by everybody, and it can't be satisfactorily read by anybody but scholars.
If it is made up in any appreciable measure of languages that nobody else understands.
A popular address is betrayed into bad taste when it outbursts the speaker's classics on men who can't understand them. In college speeches and addresses to literary associations there is nothing objectionable in Latin or Greek quotations but the limit runs no further.
A newspaper should use English, and nothing else. French is as unbecoming and un-graceful as Latin. There is a fair excuse for the use of phrases that have become so familiar as to be almost incorporated in the language, but the paper that flourishes its French or German or Spanish or Latin four-ishes its own stily conceit still more conspicuously, for it is always as easy to translate as to write the original, and it is sure to be more generally understood and, what is more, correctly "set up" and published. It is the one blot on Thackeray's admirable English that he stuffs it with French and Latin. Lady Morgan's diary is worse than macaroni Latin. A newspaper has no business with any language but that of its readers.

The Speakership Contest.
The democratic caucus for the nomination of officers of the House will meet at 7:30, Saturday evening, Springer, of Illinois, has withdrawn from the contest at the suggestion of his state delegation. Watson telegraphed the following to the Courier-Journal, last night:

The backers of Mr. Randall have fled once
more to the stupor talk about the old ticket,
and are at this moment urging Mr. Tilden
into the contest. I can say positively, and
was last summer. He would not go to Wash-
cept the nomination.

Speaker Keifer's reply to Representative Phelps, upon the proposition that he do not seek a renomination by the republicans in the interest of harmony, has been refused for publication by both gentlemen. This unusually affects him, as members say they do not care to vote for General Keifer upon "even a probability that they may be called upon to repeat it when his alleged secret to Mr. Phelps appears in print."

The Way Fowls Eat.
Fowls swallow their food, broken or not, and it enters the crop or first stomach and remains in it until it has become softened more or less, when a small quantity at a time, just as grains run into a gizzard, is forced into the gizzard, among the gravel stones. This gizzard is a strong, muscular chamber, and it is here that the whole mass is grist to grind, similar to a millstone, contracting at times, thus forcing the gravel stones into the grain and breaking it into fragments and triturating the whole mass, after which it is in suitable condition to be digested.

ter him.

Isaac Rawn, of Richmond, was killed by a locomotive while walking a Pan Handle track between 11 and 12 o'clock Wednesday night. He had left the depot about 11 o'clock, supposed to go home, but it is possible he was on his way to see his brother who watches the railroad bridge.

There is not a saloon in Monroe county, nor a representative of that county in the penitentiary. The effort of five men to obtain licenses is met with determined opposition by the leading men of the county, and the meeting will be held at Bloomington on Monday night to take steps in opposition to it.

Alvin Van Allen, of Richmond, lost two children within a few minutes last week, with a fatal result. The children were taken from the same disease, and the other evening had the additional misfortune to have his hand caught between the rollers of a cracker machine and will lose two or three of his fingers.

Nathan Morris, whose insane act of burning his own residence and store in Parke county has been published, was found, asleep in a hotel at Newburgh, N. Y., and viciously deposited in the bank there $1,450, but, as his wife saw him have over $1,500 a few hours before he was taken to the asylum, he was robbed of a part of it. It is understood that his arrest has been ordered, so that the question of his sanity may be acted upon.

William Roberts, a highly respectable farmer of Adams township, Decatur county, went to Greensburg on horseback, put his horse in a livery stable, telling the hostler to take care of him until Monday. He then went to the bank, drew $100, and soon after disappeared. Search was made, but no traces could be found until yesterday, when he was heard from at Moomouth, Ill., where he has a sister. Why he thus left is unknown to his family and friends.

On Wednesday night Stephen L. Bales, on whom strong suspicion rests for the murder masked or disguised men and thrown vi-

States Senator Augustus C. Dodge, of Iowa, who died last week, was a native of Indiana, having been born in the town of Vincennes.
His father had located at St. Genevieve, Mo., and his family in moving there from the east stopped for a time at Vincennes. Henry Dodge became a noted man in the west as a soldier and statesman. He was United States marshal for Missouri, and a member of his first constitutional convention. Then moving to what is now Wisconsin, he served as judge, territorial governor, member of congress and United States senator.

Miss Lizzie Purviance has been teaching school in the Huff school house, and has made her home with David Huff's family, four miles east of Attica. On Tuesday evening the family were in the sitting room, chatting and reading, and at 8:15 o'clock Miss Purviance stepped out on the porch, and not returning immediately, Mrs. Huff called her. Getting no reply, the family was alarmed, and sent a search party in all directions, but she could nowhere be found. The neighbors were alarmed, and the search was continued without avail until 10 o'clock the next morning, when she was found unconscious under a straw stack four hundred yards away. When she was restored to consciousness she stated that when she stepped out two men grabbed her and choked her to keep her from screaming. They started for the school house, but the alarm had been given, and they had been driven towards the woods, and having dragged their intended victim, thrust her under the straw stack without being able to further accomplish their intended purpose. Mrs. Purviance is recovering, and will resume her school on Monday.

The Popular Favorite.

densed form is the newspaper for the people.

the reputation it has gained has been secured by its universal use.

Patience With the Love.

They are such tiny feet.
They have such a way to meet.
The years which are required to break them step to evenness and make them so
More sure and slow.

They are such little hands.
Be kind. Things are so new and life so vast step beyond the doorway. All around New day has found Such tempting things to shine upon, and so
The hands are tempted hard, for know.

They are such new, young lives; Surely their newness shines Them will of many sins. They see so much.
The hands are tempted hard, for know.
That if they reach
We must not chide, but teach.

They are such fond, clear eyes,
That widen to surprise
To see or shivers—showers soon dispelled By looking in our face.
Love for much more.

They are such fair, frail gifts;
Uncertain as the rifts
Of light that lie along the sky—
They may not be here but there, and there Give them not love, but more—above And harder—patience with the love.
—George Kinsale.

One of the most singular features in the scenery of the territory of Idaho is the occurrence of dark rocky chasms into which streams descend, and from which they are never more seen. These fissures are old lava channels, produced by the outside of the molten mass cooling and forming a solid shell, which, on becoming exhausted, has been left empty, while the roof of the lava duct having at some time fallen in, the stream has become a chasm.
The river plunges and is lost in the

A chief cause of dogs "baying the moon" and barking at nothing is discomfort. Many unfortunate animals are from carelessness assigned to cold and comfortless kennels.
It was found on investigating the kennel of a dog which had nightly rendered life a burden to its owner, that the kennel was so small that the poor creature could only lie partly in it, was kept awake by cold and misery, and not unreasonably howled. Many dogs, suffering in this way, being led to violent exercise, and thus rendered a nuisance, and consequently howl at night. A dog properly cared for will rarely give an-noisy.

Fatti displays marvellous dexterity in each new opera in which he appears. As Lucia, the other night, the bridal dress was an elegant white satin, embellished with silver flow-silver fringe, draped over a front of the brocade, and a long train that falls in graceful folds. The sleeves are puffed, and the front of the open corset is studded with diamonds of great beauty. With superb jewels in her ears, a crescent ornament adorned the head, and a string of the same precious stones encircling each wrist, she is dazzling to behold.—[N. Y. Letter.]

The suggestion to place General John C.
Fremont on the retired list of the army is a good one, and should be at once adopted.
Few men have done more for their country than he; his life from boyhood almost has been one of tolling service, not for his own personal good, but for the public welfare.
The western states and territories owe him a debt, as but for Fremont's enterprise no one knows how long the Rocky mountain region might have remained unexplored and uninhabited. It was he who gave the impetus to western immigration, and to him we owe our present civilization. He is now an old man, poor, and compelled to accept a small salary for his services as an engineer in New York. If he had been born under a monarchy instead of a republic, he would now be wearing a title and living in a palace.

The latest advertising device is practiced by a New York man who is carrying on a big business in some of the villages in New Jersey. His traveling capital consists of a showy wagon, some make-believe Indians, and a lot of kettles and other noxious apparatus. An encampment is formed on a suburban lot, where the Indians give a sort of circus performance with aboriginal dances and unintelligible songs. Then, in full view of the great crowd which has gathered, they prepare the medicine. A fire is built, over which is hung a large kettle. Into the kettle they throw herbs and roots. While the fire burns and the kettle boils they dance around it with incantations, each Indian taking his turn at violently stirring the contents of the kettle. All the while the crowd that the medicine is honestly made, and that it contains no noxious ingredient. When the meat is sufficiently stewed they strain and bottle it, after which they sell it to the happy bystanders at a dollar a bottle. As the pricial cost is the expense of keeping up the show and traveling from place to place, the profits are large. It is a common thing for the sales to amount to $100 or even $150 on a fair evening.

Mexico Needs an Upheaval.
[Correspondence Chicago Times.] What Mexico needs above all things is one vast, convulsive social upheaval—a sweeping revolution like that which convulsed France, burying all the traditions of the past in one awful gulf which separates Bourbon from republican as completely as though one thousand years had intervened. The rich are the United States poor too miserably poor. The revolution must sweep away the last vestige of the political power of the church, must break up these enormous landed estates, must grind down these immense private fortunes, must abolish caste and indirect taxation; it must do away with debt-peonage and suppress the social system, from the foundation. In short, it must grind up all this ill-assorted human material into one mass of equal particles, with an even star, out of which may come the new development and perhaps a new hope.

Becoming a Valuable Crop.
[Madison Herald.]
The culture of tobacco in Jefferson county is yearly increasing, and has already assumed a prominence that has astonished some of the farmers who heretofore failed to cultivate this crop. It is said that in Milton township the tobacco crop in the last two years has enabled many farmers to pay off their indebtedness, and they are realizing three-fold the amount of money that they ever realized on all others. The manufacture of tobacco is a new industry here, and we have no doubt but that it will prove a

But when our goods are offered at lower prices than all others, a discriminating public can see at once it is to their interest to buy from us.

Clothing MODEL Company.

THE POPULAR TOPIC!

The Great Closing-Out Sale—The J. A. McKENZIE CLOTHING STOCK, Recently Absorbed by the

WHEN,

Is proceeding very successfully, and the public are freely availing themselves of this extraordinary opportunity to supply themselves with Clothing and Furnishings at the enormous reductions in prices. The space at Mr. McKenzie's old stand being much too limited—large as it is—for the proper exhibition of the whole stock, and the satisfactory accommodation of the multitude attracted there by the extraordinary inducements, we have, as heretofore stated, transferred a portion of the stock to the WHEN. For the convenience and information of the public, we mention some of the descriptions and lines of goods embraced in the McKenzie stock that are also exhibited for sale at the WHEN, viz:

MEN'S SUITS.

In Steel-mixed Corkscrew (Frock), reduced from $22.50 to $16.00.
In Steel-mixed Corkscrew (Sack), reduced from $22.50 to $16.00.
In Imported Dark Blue Silk-mixed (Sack), reduced from $35.00 to $24.00.

MEN'S OVERCOATS.

All-wool Melton, reduced from $30 to $13.
Irish Frieze Newmarkets, reduced from $35 to $25.
Steel-mixed, all-wool, sack, reduced from $30 to $10.
Steel-mixed Corkscrew, reduced from $30 to $15.
Imported Blue Fur Beaver, cord edge, lined with Harris Cashmere, reduced from $35 to $25.
These are a few samples from the Men's Department at the WHEN. The McKenzie stock, at the reduced prices, is duly represented at the WHEN in the Youth's, Boys' and Children's Department, but brevity forbids further enumeration at this time.

As there is always, on occasions of this kind, more or less idle and truthless chatter, emanating, in the main, from ignorant, insincere or mischievous sources, about goods being "shell-worn," "stale," and other such twaddle, we assure the public that the stock is in splendid condition, and consists, as most people know, of very desirable goods, largely of the higher grades. The public have learned, from an acquaintance of nearly nine years with the business methods of the WHEN, that our word is good respecting this or any other question of fact pertaining to our business. But the goods speak for themselves and commend themselves. Every one can see for himself just what they are. The old price and the reduced price are in plain view on every garment, and the magnitude of the reduction is obvious at a glance.

The WHEN stock proper, in all cases where the goods are of the same description and grade as in the McKenzie stock, has been marked down so that prices throughout may be in harmony.
